

INTRODUCTION

A very warm welcome to the fourth instalment of the Blythswood Square bar book.

In this edition you will discover drinks which we consider to be pillars of modern bar culture. The majority of the recipes in this book are what you may consider antiques, dating as far back as the 19th century, with a handful of recent concoctions which we believe deserve to be included.

On the first page of each chapter you will find a drink which has been part of our repertoire since day one. Drinks which have stood the test of time and become synonymous with Blythswood Square.

Please remember, this is simply a collection of recipes which we have grown to love. The most important thing is that you, as our guest, receive a drink that you love. Therefore we are more than happy to create drinks tailored specifically to you. All you have to do is ask.

Please enjoy.

HIBISCUS FIZZ £11.00

The hibiscus flower has been used to make tea in many countries around the world. Here we add it to Champagne to impart notes of raspberry and rhubarb to make an already luxurious drink that little bit more decadent.

Grenadine, Champagne, hibiscus flower

DEATH IN THE AFTERNOON £12.00

Created by the famous author Ernest Hemingway, this sharp, refreshing and hard hitting libation has the crispness of Absinthe playing with the biscuit notes of Champagne. Just don't have too many!

Champagne, Absinthe.

GREY GOOSE LE FIZZ £10.50

Vodka made from grapes is sweetened with the grassy notes of elderflower and sharpened with the addition of lime juice. These flavours are then brought to life when the drink is lengthened with soda water

Grey Goose Vodka, elderflower liqueur, lime, soda.

RALLY FIZZ £9.50

The floral and sweet attributes of Prosecco are emphasized with the inclusion of gin and elderflower liqueur. These in turn are balanced out with a little citrus in the form of lemon juice. Together they create a fresh crisp drink perfect for the warmer seasons.

Prosecco, Hendricks Gin, elderflower liqueur, lemon.

SHARP SHARP FRESH FRESH CRISP CRISP

THE PEGU CLUB COCKTAIL

---

£9.00

In the 1880's Rangoon, Burma, a club was established in order to serve the many British army officers who were posted there during the Third Anglo-Burmese War. This club was named after a river which ran through the country called the Pegu. Due to the scorching heat and bone dry conditions during this time, the officers required a drink to be created which would, with one sip, quench their thirst and also provide quick relief from their daily toil. Thus the Pegu Club cocktail was born.

Tanqueray Gin, Triple Sec, Angostura bitters, West Indian orange bitters, lime, sugar.

AVIATION

---

£9.90

Created by Hugo Ensslin, Head Bartender at the Hotel Wallick in New York in the early 20th Century.

---

BRONX TRIPLE O

---

£9.90

The origin of the Bronx is still contested to this day. What we do know is that it was either discovered in Philadelphia by one Joseph S. Sormani, a Bronx Restaurateur, or Johnny Solon, a Bartender at the Manhattan Hotel. Either way, this is our version, which was updated by Mr A. Hayakawa in 2013.

Bombay Sapphire Gin, Sweet and Dry Vermouth, lemon, sugar, orange juice, orange flower water, orange bitters.

PENICILLIN

---

£7.50

You would be forgiven for presuming that this recipe dates back to the golden era of pre-prohibition bartending, although in reality it is a perfect example of how a modern drink can be so successful it creates its own legend. Created in 2005 by New York Bartender Sam Ross.

Black Bottle Whisky, honey and ginger syrup, lemon, Ardbeg Spray.

CORPSE REVIVER NO2

---

£10.50

There are a collection of drinks, which are suitably referred to as Corpse Revivers. The original aim of these recipes was to provide a speedy recovery from the previous night's festivities. The drink which has stood the test of time.

Hendricks Gin, Lillet Blanc, Triple Sec, Absinthe, lemon.

DAIQUIRI NATURALE

---

£8.00

Originating in Cuba at the time of the Spanish American War, this drink is named after a mining engineer, Jennings Cox. Without realising it, he had started something which would grow to become the base of innumerable drinks around the globe. The list is endless, but the original recipe is the simplest and, in our opinion, the finest.

Bacardi Superior Rum, lime, sugar.

EXOTIC TROPICAL POLYNESIAN

MAI TAI

---

£10.00

In 1934, Victor Jules Bergeron, or Trader Vic to his acquaintances, opened his first restaurant in Oakland, San Francisco. The restaurant specialised in Polynesian food and Victor had a real talent for mixing drinks. A few years later he was testing a new recipe on two Tahitian friends and after taking a sip of his creation, one of the party, Carrie Guild exclaimed “Maita i - Roa Aé” which in Tahitian means out of this world. The recipe was a success and the name stuck. Shortened to Mai Tai, the drink rocketed to fame over the following few decades and is still ever popular to this day.

Appleton's 8 Year Old Rum, Wray & Nephew Overproof, Triple Sec, Orgeat, lime, sugar.

PISCO SOUR

---

£8.50

Chile or Peru? That is the only question which concerns this drink. Both countries claim this creation as their national beverage and both have their own techniques regarding its execution. Either way, the recipe we opt for is as follows.

Pisco, lime, sugar, egg white, Angostura bitters.

BUMBO

---

£9.50

Shortly after the British conquest of Jamaica, a time when piracy was rife, the admiralty switched the sailor's daily ration from brandy to rum. Nearly a century later Admiral Edward 'Old Grog' Vernon, introduced water and lime to the mix. The health properties from the citrus proved beneficial and the drink became popular, known as Grog. Bumbo was a slightly later adaption which included spices and was said to be much more palatable.

Pusser's Navy Rum, spiced tea, lime, demerara sugar.

GLANDULA DEL MONO

---

(MONKEY GLAND) £13.00

Created by Phil Ward this is a tequila based variation of the Monkey Gland cocktail, which was a favorite gin based prohibition drink

Blanco Tequila, Absinthe, lemon, orange, grenadine

---

RUM FLIP

---

£7.50

The flip first appeared in the 17th Century. Originally they consisted of a mixture of beer, rum, molasses and cream that would have been heated with a red hot poker. Over time the poker lost out and the humble egg was favoured to emulsify all the ingredients into a rich, decadent drink.

Pampero Anejo Especial Rum, Falernum, Yellow Chartreuse, grenadine, egg yolk, nutmeg

FLUFFY<sub>FLUFFY</sub> FRUITY<sub>FRUITY</sub> FRUITY SOFT<sub>SOFT</sub>

DAISY

---

£8.50

The term Daisy dates back to the late 19th century. One of the earliest references is from 1876, in the second edition of The Bon Vivant's Companion written by the legendary Bartender Jerry Thomas. Also referred to as The Bartender's Guide this book cited the recipe as:

4 dashes gum syrup
3 dashes of Curaçao Liqueur
The juice of half a small lemon
2 small wine glasses of Brandy
2 dashes of Jamaica Rum

Fill the glass one-third full of shaved ice. Shake well, strain into a large cocktail glass and fill up with seltzer water from a syphon.

Rather than referring to one singular drink, the Daisy is applied to a large range of similar styled drinks. What most people don't realise is that this formula became the basis for countless modern classics, including the Margarita, Cosmopolitan and Sidecar to name merely a few. The recipe we use has not changed since we opened in 2009.

Tanqueray Gin, Triple Sec, Grenadine, lemon, soda.

CLOVER CLUB

---

£7.50

Named after a group of industry elites who gathered together regularly at the Bellevue Stratford hotel, in pre-prohibition Philadelphia. Described in its heyday as being a distinguished patron of the oak panelled lounge, the Clover Club cocktail was all but forgotten until recent years. Thankfully, it is now celebrated.

Tanqueray Gin, Martini Rosso, raspberry syrup, lemon, egg white.

DAIQUIRI NO2

---

£9.50

The history of the Daiquiri is long and varied and some of today's modern creations can seem quite far removed from what is considered to be the original recipe. This combination suits the modern sweet tooth while still celebrating the heritage of the drink.

Pampero Anejo Especial Rum, Crème de Fraise, lime, sugar, egg white.

MARY PICKFORD

---

£8.50

Credited to Bartender Fred Kaufman, who fled the U.S. for Cuba during the prohibition era. This drink was created for the young Hollywood star of the same name who was filming a silent movie with Charlie Chaplin at the time. They frequented the bar at the Hotel Nacional de Cuba where Fred was employed.

Pampero Anejo Especial Rum, Maraschino Liqueur, pineapple, lime, Grenadine.

FRENCH MARTINI

---

£9.25

Everyone's guilty pleasure.

Ketel One Vodka, Chambord, Pineapple.

SHORT POTENT HARD

POTENT
HARD

---

OLD FASHIONED

£9.00

---

The term 'cocktail' was first seen on March 16th, 1806, in a publication of The Balance and Columbia Repository, in Hudson, New York. The Editor, in response to a reader's enquiry, described the drink as a potent concoction of spirits, bitters, water and sugar. If you asked for a cocktail in any bar at that time, it is highly likely that you would receive a version of this recipe with rum, gin or brandy as its base. Other spirits would also be used and by the 1860's the introduction of Curacao, Absinthe and other liqueurs became common. Eventually, whiskey became the spirit of choice and patrons of the bar scene would ask for theirs to be served 'in the old fashioned style' hence the name now applied to this iconic drink.

Bulleit Rye, bitters, sugar.

NEGRONI

---

£8.50

The Americano, a drink popular in Italy in the early 1900's consisting of Sweet Vermouth, Campari and soda water, was the favourite tippie of the Count Camillo Negroni.

Tanqueray Gin, Martini Rosso, Campari.

---

SAZERAC

---

£12.00

In mid 1800's New Orleans, a local liquor importer named Sewell T. Taylor acquired a brand of cognac named Sazerac de Forge et Fils. A local bar then changed its name to Sazerac House and started pouring a cocktail using this cognac mixed with bitters made by a local druggist Antoine Amedie Peychaud. The recipe altered over the years and this is our preferred version.

Hennessy Fine de Cognac, Bulleit Rye, Pechaud's bitters, Absinthe, sugar.

MARTINEZ

---

£9.00

Hailed as the predecessor to what we know now as the Martini, the Martinez is similar in content but very different in constitution. First recorded in O.H. Byron's 1884 publication 'The Modern Bartender', it was listed as an alternative to a Manhattan.

Martini Rosso, Tanqueray 10 Gin, Maraschino Liqueur, orange bitters

BROOKLYN

---

£12.50

The Brooklyn is one of five cocktails named for the boroughs of New York City, the Manhattan being the most famous. It resembles a Manhattan but with the addition of Maraschino Liqueur, Cocchi Americano and bitter Amer Picon.

Bulleit Rye Whiskey, Cocchi Americano, Amer Picon, Maraschino

EL PRESIDENTE

---

£8.25

The El Presidente earned its acclaim in Havana, Cuba during the 1920s through the 1940s during the American Prohibition. The cocktail was named in honor of President Gerardo Machado and quickly became the preferred drink of the Cuban upper class.

Bacardi 8 Year Old Rum, Martini Rosso, grenadine, triple sec

MARTINIS

MARTINIS

It is safe to say the Martini is one of the world's most iconic and renowned mixed drinks. The story is a long and interesting one, which is substantial enough to fill the countless books written over the years dedicated to this libation. We will try here to summarise its history and list a few of our preferred recipes and techniques.

Written records of the Martini started appearing towards the mid to late 19th century, but like many classics of its kind, it is certain that people would have been enjoying the mix of gin and vermouth many years before. During prohibition the easy access of both of these ingredients ensured the Martini was cemented in our culture and it became the drink of choice for those wishing to consume hard liquor in a civilised manner.

Over the years the ratio of spirit to vermouth changed, originally the mix would most likely be 1:1, probably due to the crudeness of the quite often homemade gin and the low price of French and Italian vermouths. As the gin became more refined, the ratio gradually shifted towards what we commonly see now as a Martini, heavy on the gin, very light on the vermouth.

The usual questions you will face when asking for a Martini are as follows:

GIN OR VODKA? Vodka Martinis became popular after the spirit was introduced to America in the 1940's. The botanicals of gin provide a more complex flavour but vodka still hits the mark.

SHAKEN OR STIRRED? 99% of the time your Martini will be stirred. Shaking makes it colder but adds more dilution. It's your choice.

OLIVE OR TWIST? A nice green olive sitting in the glass is what most images of the Martini portray. A twist of citrus peel adds a whole new level of scent and flavour to the drink.

DRY OR WET? Less vermouth is drier, more is wetter.

The point is, whether you are a regular Martini drinker or not, you are the one who should decide how it is served and we are here to point you in the right direction. Choose from the following few or ask for your preferred recipe.

WORLD<sup>WORLD</sup>

WHISKIES<sup>WHISKIES</sup>

Whiskies from the United States can vary from bourbon, rye or blends of both. Bourbon is technically a blend of differing grain bases but has to contain a larger wheat percentage than other grains in the blend.

Rye whiskies tend to be a bit more peppery, earthier but have fruitiness buried in its characteristics. Canadian Club is also a blend that includes rye in its mix and was sold as such during prohibition in the US due to their favouring it. Japanese whiskies were similar to Scotch originally but are now generally aged in indigenous Japanese oak.

ISLAY

---

Islay malts are some of the most well known due to their heavy, smoky and peaty characteristics. At one time, there were as many as 23 distilleries on this small island but now there are only 8. Ardbeg, although having the highest ppm (parts per million) of peat is surprisingly light and fruity. Lagavulin and Laphroaig both offer the biggest challenge to the palate, as they are both big, robust whiskies best enjoyed after dinner. Bunnahabhain, contrastingly, has little or no peat characteristics whatsoever, yet has a slightly salty character due to its coastal ageing location.

CAMPBELTOWN

HIGHLAND

This region offers the most variety of all. The Western Highland whiskies are less peaty than Islays but still slightly smoky, most commonly found to have sweet starts and dry finishes. The Southern, Eastern and Central Highlands are lighter bodied, sweeter with dry finishes. The Northern Highlands tend to offer a slightly spicy character with a light body and dry finish. This region now includes the Islands with distilleries found on the Islands of Mull, Jura, Orkney, Arran, Lewis and Skye. Generally considered as lighter versions of Islay, Highland Park is considered as one of the most rounded of whiskies produced.
